India offers an immense opportunity for wildlife tourism. It is home to varied wildlife supplemented by an equally rich variety of flora and fauna. The heritage of wildlife in India comprises of more than 70 national parks and about 400 wildlife sanctuaries including the bird sanctuaries. Through the dark forest of national reserves you get an opportunity to catch rare glimpses of Royal Bengal Tiger, Majestic Elephants, Asian Lion, Black Buck, One Horned Rhinoceros and numerous species of birds.

Rajasthan is literally the Land of the Kings. It is home to the chivalrous Rajputs, and its battle-scarred heritage is ingrained with pride and tradition. The upper echelons of this medieval society built magnificent palaces and forts, many of which are now sumptuous hotels and impressive museums. In addition, stunning handicrafts and fine arts were developed and nurtured through patronage by the maharajas. Village life remains steeped in tradition but, just like the rest of India, the pace of change is accelerating. Turbaned men still barter for decorated camels – they just relay the successful deal home via a smartphone.

The vibrant aura of Maharashtra, the cave temples of Ajanta and Ellora in Aurangabad , Gujrat - rich culture, history beauty and the palm-fringed beaches of Goa enrich tourism in West India. Sail through the cool breeze of hill stations, explore various historical monuments or simply go on natural trails, the options are unlimited with tourism in Western India.

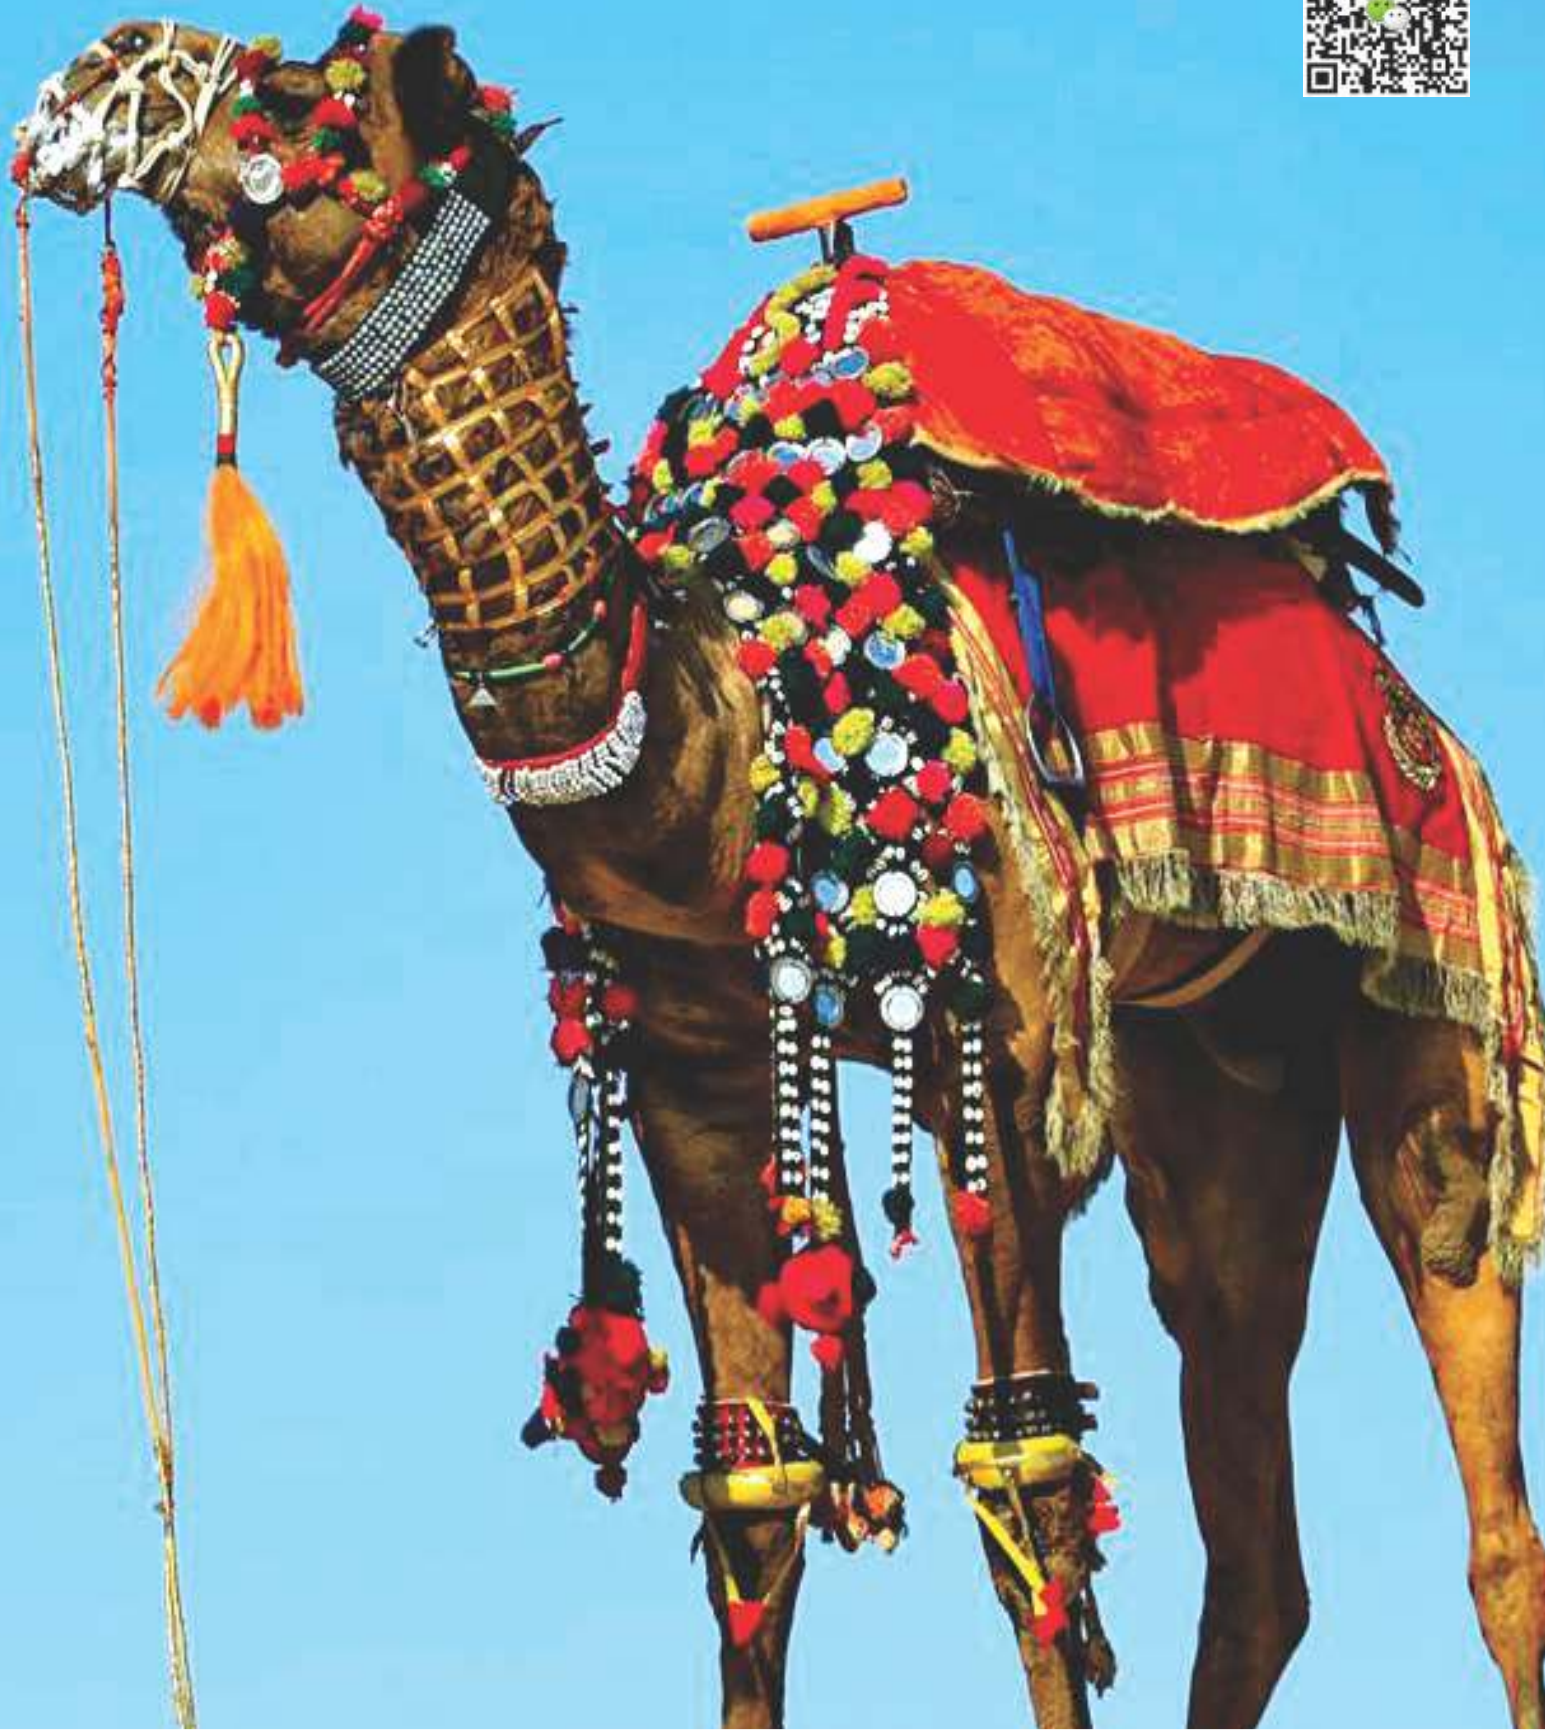

Spirituality is often confused with religion, with the words "spiritual" and "religion" often being used interchangeably. Spiritual tourism involves people traveling to places to find the meaning of life and attain inner peace through self-realisation and personal transformation; they may or may not follow a particular religion or faith. Rishikesh, McLeodganj, Bodhgaya ,Auroville, Tiruvannamalai and Shirdi are some places people travel to for this purpose in the country.
